

National Weekly Roundup

A message from Denita Wawn CEO of Master Builders Australia

I experienced this week a firsthand tour of the venues for the Master Builders Australia National Conference in Hobart that is being held from 23-25 November 2017.

The standout for me is our Friday evening event at MONA, a MBA national award winner, where we will be amazed by the art, architecture and construction efforts of our member builders. Once we have over stimulated our vision we will then move to our taste buds with an outstanding array of Tasmanian food accompanied by beer and wine produced on the MONA site.

The central venue for the Conference is Princes Wharf 1, which hosts the Taste of Tasmania each year and is directly adjacent to Salamanca Place with its whaling history, world famous markets and great bars, pubs, restaurants and art galleries. We anticipate that the events at Princes Wharf 1, including the national awards, will enable us to celebrate building and construction in Australia while we appreciate fine Tasmanian food, beverage, and other Tasmanian products.

If you have not already done so, I encourage you to register for the National Conference and National Awards in November this year. The Tasmanians are looking forward to welcoming the mainlanders to town and for you to experience what the state has to offer. Tasmania, as a tourism destination, has set a new benchmark for quality tourism in Australia.

PS Given Tasmania is my home town I am not biased at all!
